“ When my mom was able to visit, she and Ms. Darcie would always chat. Each time, they would need to be re-introduced, but chatted away like old friends. My mom passed away about 6 weeks ago, so now they can rejoice together with Jesus. Prayers for your family!

“ Mammaw and I went to choir practice with Kay and Dave on Sunday nights. She would share stories of her marriage, husband, children and her life when she was young. Some Sundays she would repeat a story but that was okay. I just listened as if I had never heard it before. I quit going to choir practice when she did. It wasn't the same without her. I miss her each day but especially on Sunday when she isn't sitting in front of me and asking to hold Reva. She would always tell me how good Roy was to her and how much she loved Kay. They have both been a blessing to her. Prayers for the family.

Mammaw was the sweetest lady I have ever met. She loved her family, her pastor, her church & most of all her God. We look forward to seeing her again.

Even though I have only known Ms. Darcie for a few years she was one of my favorite people. We would often joke about our same problems. I would introduce myself as “the lady who couldn't see or hear” and she would give me a little chuckle. I have admired what good care she received from her family. Always including her in whatever the occasion might be. Seems it is rare these days. God Bless the family. Ms. Darcie will no longer need assistance as she is in God's hands. Rest in Peace Ms. Darcie. You will be missed.
