“ I will always cherish the memory of sitting beside Aunt Delilah at her piano when I was little. I must have been six or seven, my feet barely touching the floor, sitting wide-eyed on the bench as she patiently guided my small hands across the keys.

Her living room was always full of soft, golden light, the scent of lavender and cinnamon tea wrapping around us like a hug. She never rushed me, never got frustrated when I stumbled. Instead, she'd smile, hum along, and gently tap the right keys until I found the notes myself. That afternoon, when I finally played my first little song, she clapped like I'd just performed on a grand stage, pulled me into her arms, and kissed the top of my head.

Looking back now, I realize it was never just about learning piano. It was about her love, her patience, and the way she made me believe in myself. Aunt Delilah, you filled our lives with so much music and warmth, and you will always be a part of the best parts of who I am. I will miss you deeply, but I know your spirit and your song live on in all of us.

Thank you for everything. I love you always.
