“ Family and friends of Jack, this is what I posted on my FaceBook. I am so very sorry for your loss. :Our dear friend Jack passed away this morning, he was a kind and gentle man and he was loved by my whole family. He was the "handyman" at our house, he could do just about anything and never said no if I asked him to do something, money rarely changed hands, he fixed the plumbing, mowed the yard, trimmed the trees and kept our vehicles running when Randy was too busy to do these things and after I started living there alone he was invaluable to me as a friend, he was a gentleman and never said or did anything that made me feel uncomfortable, I don't think I ever heard him cuss or talk bad about anybody, he waited until he was in this 40's before he ever found the right woman to marry and we were all saddened just about 5 years later when he became a widower, he was a different man after she died, he moved off into the country and rarely came to town and we sure did miss him, none of us have seen him in maybe 5 years, but we always have thought of and prayed for him, and now he is again with his dear Janice and I know he is at last pain free, and happy. RIP dear, dear Jack, you have earned this and will be truly missed.
