“ She was my grandmother. She raised me as her own. She was a stubborn, hard headed lady. I am who I am today because of her. I will keep her alive in my cooking and canning. Because she loved the two so much. I miss you already. Hugs.

“ We first met in 1968 when you became my sister in law and later became a dear friend. I remember when I was away from my home for the first and you lived in South Carolina, I was so lonely. We wrote back and forth and that was such a comfort to me. Not only were you my sister in law but a friend I needed. I'll surely miss you. When you see Robert he'll probably want some of you potato salad, just saying. Until we meet again, I love and cherish you. Annette
