“ We first met Betty when she came to the foothills as the bride of Dave Calfee. She came out running even though she had her personal affairs to take care of in the Bay Area and keep up with Dave's busy family and social life. She was tired the first few months but she never dropped a beat. Betty and I became friends and she told me some of her life before coming to Meadow Vista. She was an active and admired lady. We often had dinner at each others houses and of course always included a few rounds of bridge. We often discussed our political views and we were at the opposite spectrum of the political scheme but we could discuss our views without anger but understanding the others point of view. She was a valued friend.
