“ To the family of Rex

Rex was the very first person I befriended in the first grade and we became instant buddies. We played together at school for years, always having a great time.

We lost track of each other during our college years, but we found a way to get together every few years for a reunion and to share old memories.

I found out about Rex's passing only an hour before the service was to start, or I would certainly would have been there.

I mourn his loss and am grateful i was able to call him my firend.
