“ It with a heavy heart that I say good-bye to the smiling, good-hearted, fella that was my uncle Ruben. Just recently, at the memorial service for my dad, his brother, Bill, Ruben and I talked about his memories of making a few dollars shucking corn for a living, how he and my dad would travel to Chattanooga in a rickety truck for the opportunity to shuck corn for pay. I can't remember how little they made, but I do know they always brought some money home to their mama. Another favorite story, one that I imagine others have already told, is the one about Ruben pounding on a silver quarter until he made it into a wedding band for Joyce--now that's love. I will miss his quick and ready smile at all the Hunt get-togethers. He will be missed by us all. Enjoy your rest, Ruben. You've earned it.
