“ I miss her so much she would always come over and be waiting for me when I get home from school. One good memory was when I got home from school and of course she was waiting for me she said " you never talk to me anymore". She would always do that I never have felt so lonely without her I am having so many dreams I fell like she is trying to say something. At her funeral I sung a song and that made me feel great going threw my feelings.

“ I was out of state when I heard the news of Velma - she will be missed very much and I cherish the time she crossed my path in life and so thankful she did. She is in no pain and right where she was hoping for to spend with her family that has gone before us. My prayers are to all of the family and know another Angel is looking over you.

“ Wade and Teresa, I am sorry for the pain you are experiencing from your loss, but I also know the feelings your Mom felt at losing Guy. I lost my youngest son in 1988, so believe me when I say God makes no mistakes and puts no more on us than we can bear (because He is always there when we can not). I know you understand the joy she must be feeling and seeing Guy and your Dad again and meeting God and Jesus face-to-face for the first time. I will keep you in my prayers for peace in your heart. God's blessing on you and your families.

“ I am sorry you have lost your sweet momma, Wade can't you just see the smile on Guy's face when she got to God's kingdom. I am praying that peace comes to your heart and you all shall see her again when God needs another angel like he needed her. Work kept me from coming to pay my respects. Hang in there.

“ I write this with tears and an acheing heart. Velma would talk to me with love and joy about her Grandkids. Before Mom passed, she baked cakes and brought them to us. I have not forgotten her kindness. I will miss talking to her and hearing that unique laugh of hers. To ease the heartache, I will see her embracing T.L. and Guy with that smile on her face and know she is home and no longer has a broken heart. My heart felt sympathy and prayers to the family.
